H.E. reiterated the call for dialogue among differing parties worldwide and expressed our support for policies of compromise and mutual concessions. H.E. attributed many of the world's conflicts and disturbances to intolerance and the lack of dialogue.

H.E. acknowledged the positions of the People's Republic of China in international forums supporting the rights of the Palestinian people, noting that the ongoing genocide in Gaza clearly targets Palestinians and employs the most severe repressive measures against them.

H.E. asserted that achieving lasting global peace requires avoiding double standards and viewing the world with an impartial perspective. H.E. illustrated that China, with its rich civilization, can play a leading role in promoting peace.
