Sayyid Al-Hakeem meets healthcare professionals representatives delegation, calls to redress their martyrs

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, lauded the efforts of healthcare professionals, especially the critical roles they played during the COVID-19 crisis and the sacrifices of the "white army" in treating patients and educating the public about the virus and prevention methods.

During His Eminence's meeting with a delegation representing healthcare and nursing professionals, H.E. emphasized the importance of these professionals receiving their rightful financial, moral, and occupational entitlements. H.E. called for compensating the families of those who lost their lives and urged that they be provided with designated plots of land in Baghdad and other provinces, in coordination with local governments.

H.E. stressed the need for fairness in ensuring these professionals receive their financial entitlements as stipulated by existing laws and called for addressing any injustices caused by certain legal provisions that impact their financial and occupational rights.
