Sayyid Al-Hakeem urges to provide water and modern machinery to support Babylon's farmers

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers Alliance, met with sheiks and dignitaries of Tufayl tribe from Al-Kifl district. His Eminence highlighted the importance of delivering services to these regions and supporting agriculture. H.E. praised last season's diverse crop production, stressing the need for water supply and modern technology in farming. H.E. called for enhancing Babylon's agricultural, industrial, religious, and archaeological aspects, stating that boosting productive sectors is key to ending the rentier state and mono-economy.

H.E. reiterated support for Prime Minister Al-Sudani's government, and its service and developmental path, illustrating the importance of preserving the achievements, and appreciating the tribes of Babylon for their role in serving the Arba’een pilgrims of Imam Hussein.
