Sayyid Al-Hakeem: Lebanon Ceasefire Announcement Reflects People, Resistance Legendary Resilience

During a visit to the guest house of Sayyid Latif Sayyid Jawad Abu Al-Ness Al-Yasari, Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers Alliance, met with an esteemed gathering of tribal leaders, dignitaries, and elders from Wasit Province. His Eminence reminisced about the shared history with the people of this cherished province and its prominent figures.

In his remarks, H.E. stated, “Our relationship with our families and noble tribes is a heritage passed down from our ancestors and one we will hand to future generations.” H.E. described the ceasefire announcement in Lebanon as a testament to the legendary resilience of its people and the Islamic resistance. H.E. explained that the scale of losses incurred by the Israeli entity compelled it to accept the ceasefire, noting that while nations achieve victory by fulfilling their declared objectives, revolutionary movements succeed by preventing their adversaries from reaching theirs. israel failed to retrieve its captives, return displaced persons, or impose any terms on the resistance. The destruction it caused is merely a reflection of its barbarity, and as time unfolds, the truth of these events will become evident, and the blood of the martyrs will be avenged.

H.E. affirmed Iraq’s political, media, and humanitarian support for the Lebanese and Palestinian peoples. H.E. called for balancing solidarity with the oppressed peoples of the region and maintaining Iraq’s hard-won stability.

On the anniversary of the PMF Law, H.E. highlighted the importance of this legislation in preserving the institution, recalling the challenging circumstances surrounding its enactment. H.E. urged continued efforts to institutionalize and organize the Popular Mobilization Forces (PMF).

H.E. noted Iraq’s political, social, and security stability, emphasizing that others view Iraq with greater optimism than its own citizens often do. H.E. praised the progress seen in some provinces, including Wasit, and stressed the importance of utilizing oil resources for the benefit of local communities. H.E. called for prioritizing development and reconstruction in areas where oil is extracted.

H.E. also emphasized the need to support the agricultural sector by providing seeds, fertilizers, and fuel, commending Prime Minister Al-Sudani’s understanding of its needs given his expertise in this field. H.E. encouraged fostering positivity, optimism, and a focus on achievements.

Regarding the healthcare sector in Wasit, H.E. stressed the importance of building hospitals and equipping them with the necessary medical staff and resources to improve healthcare services.
