Sayyid Al-Hakeem Praises Iraqi Tribes, Advocates Agricultural Sector's Support

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, met with Sheikh Hamed Hezber Al-Abdaal, Emir of Al-Anbakiyah Tribe in Iraq and the Arab world, to discuss political and social developments, particularly the situation in Diyala province.

Sayyid Al-Hakeem highlighted the vital role of Iraqi tribes in promoting social stability, emphasizing that they are a cornerstone of Iraqi society alongside religious rituals and the guidance of the religious authority, which has played a key role in safeguarding Iraq during times of crisis.

Addressing another important issue, His Eminence called for increased support for the agricultural sector in Iraq, stressing its significance in diversifying income sources and ensuring food security. H.E. also underscored the importance of providing farmers with essential resources such as seeds, fertilizers, and fuel, while ensuring the prompt disbursement of their financial entitlements to sustain agricultural production.

This meeting falls within the framework of Sayyid Al-Hakeem efforts to enhance cooperation among different societal groups to foster stability and sustainable development in Iraq.
