Sayyid Al-Hakeem Congratulates Christmas, Affirms Iraqi Coexistence, Cooperation

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, visited to the Old Orthodox church to attend Christmas Mass, and extended his heartfelt greetings to the Christian community, the Iraqi people, and Christians around the world on the occasion of the blessed Christmas. His Eminence highlighted that Christmas serves as a valuable opportunity to reconnect with our Christian brothers and sisters.

H.E. emphasized that divine messages convey values and principles, and the closer we align ourselves with heavenly virtues, the nearer we are to Allah Almighty. H.E. reflected on the challenges Iraq has endured and the stability we now enjoy in political, social, and security spheres, alongside the ongoing reconstruction and development efforts. This progress requires collective cooperation and support to strengthen the country’s service-oriented initiatives. H.E. also acknowledged that these achievements were made possible through the prayers, sacrifices, and perseverance of all segments of society.

Furthermore, H.E. expressed solidarity with the people of Palestine, Syria, and Lebanon, wishing them stability, security, peace, and coexistence. H.E. hopes these nations will overcome their challenges, care for their citizens, and realize their aspirations.
