Sayyid Al-Hakeem: Iraq Transitions from Peaceful Coexistence to Positive Coexistence Among Its Components

Concluding His Eminence’s tour in Dhi Qar Province, Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers Alliance, visited the Mandaean temple, where H.E. emphasized the vital role of Iraq’s diverse communities in enriching society and strengthening national unity. H.E. highlighted that Iraq’s cultural and religious diversity is a source of strength and a unique asset, calling for its management in a way that transforms it into bridges of connection with regional and global communities, thereby expanding Iraq’s influence on both regional and international levels.

H.E. stressed that Iraq has progressed from mere peaceful coexistence among its components to positive coexistence and integration, where all groups actively contribute to building a better future for the country. H.E. praised the significant role played by Iraq’s various components, including the Sabean Mandaeans, in promoting the values of tolerance and cooperation among the Iraqi people.

Reaffirming H.E.'s call for strengthening national unity, H.E. urged leveraging Iraq’s cultural and religious diversity as a tool for stability and development. H.E. also emphasized the importance of fostering international engagement to reflect Iraq’s true image as a nation rooted in coexistence and integration.

This visit is part of H.E.'s broader tour of Dhi Qar Province, aimed at enhancing communication with Iraq’s diverse communities and addressing their concerns, contributing to greater national unity and sustainable development.
