Sayyid Al-Hakeem Meets Basra’s Tribal Sheikhs, Dignitaries at Sayyids’ Al-Hasouna Guesthouse, Emphasizes Importance Stability, National Unity

During his visit to Basra, Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, was welcomed at the guesthouse of Al-Hasouna, hosted by Sayyid Talib Khaleel Al-Hasouna. The gathering was attended by the head of Al-Hasouna clan, Sayyid Adnan Al-Hasouna, along with a group of tribal sheikhs and dignitaries from Basra.

H.E. recalled the historical moments that united the people of Basra in resisting dictatorship and contributing to building the new Iraq. H.E. highlighted that this meeting reflects Iraq’s recovery and Basra's progress, noting that Basra stands today as a success story in Iraq's journey of advancement. H.E. called for spreading positivity and gratitude to Allah for the political, social, and security stability that the country currently enjoys.

H.E. stressed the importance of overcoming minor disputes and strengthening national unity, emphasizing that community leaders play a vital role in recognizing achievements and fostering optimism among citizens. H.E. pointed out that Iraq is viewed with admiration internationally and is steadily moving forward, expressing hope that Iraqis notice these developments in their daily lives.

H.E. also emphasized the need to compensate Basra for the challenges it faced in the past, whether during the struggle against dictatorship or in combating terrorism. H.E. praised the great sacrifices made by the people of Basra for Iraq and called for preserving stability and making it a lasting reality. H.E. affirmed that those who strive to achieve stability and work towards it will undoubtedly reap its rewards.

At the end of the meeting, H.E. expressed appreciation for the role of Basra's tribes, leaders, and dignitaries in enhancing social cohesion and maintaining security and stability. H.E. reaffirmed that Basra deserves more attention and recognition for its significant contributions across various fields.
