Sayyid Al-Hakeem Meets Basra Tribal Sheikhs, Dignitaries, Emphasizes Stability, Development

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, visited the guesthouse of Sheikh Kadhum Abdullah Yassin Al-Dahish, where H.E. met with tribal leaders and dignitaries from Basra, recalling the deep-rooted relationship shared with Basra's sheikhs during pivotal moments in Iraq's history.

H.E. highlighted that Iraq is currently experiencing political, social, and security stability, underscoring the importance of preserving and enhancing these achievements. H.E. called for a positive and wise approach to regional developments and urged collective responsibility in safeguarding the stability gained.

H.E. congratulated the attendees on the blessed anniversaries of the Imams of Ahl al-Bayt (peace be upon them) and the Shaaban uprising, praising the calm and stability in Basra and recognizing the vital role of its honorable tribes in maintaining security alongside the efforts of security forces. H.E. expressed hope for further development and prosperity in Basra, in line with its historical significance and status.

H.E. noted that Iraq has become a refuge for the region's people due to its growing stability and rising regional influence. H.E. emphasized the need to develop the agricultural sector, protect local crops from harmful imports, and adopt modern agricultural and irrigation technologies to boost local production and support the national economy.

At the conclusion of the meeting, His Eminence stressed the importance of unity and collaboration among tribes, the government, and society to safeguard national achievements and to continue advancing stability and development in Basra and Iraq as a whole.
