Sayyid Al-Hakeem Meets Al-Budraj Tribe Sheikhs, Dignitaries, Praises Their Nation-Building Role

During a visit to Sheikh Haidar Al-Dubaissi's guesthouse and the traditional gatherings of the esteemed Al-Budraj tribe, His Eminence Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, met with several sheikhs and dignitaries of the tribe. H.E. recalled their shared history in resisting dictatorship, contributing to Iraq's rebuilding, drafting the constitution, and establishing the political system.

H.E. emphasized that the sacrifices of Al-Budraj's martyrs stand as a testament to their legacy of giving, noting that their blood paved the way for building Iraq and safeguarding the national project. H.E. also commended the significant progress Iraq has witnessed in political, social, and security sectors, along with tangible advancements in public services, while acknowledging the continued need for further efforts to achieve the nation's aspirations.

H.E. praised the developmental and service improvements in Basra and other Iraqi provinces, stressing the importance of safeguarding national achievements. H.E. also lauded the resilience and unity of the Iraqi people and their commitment to their religious leadership, urging vigilance against any attempts to destabilize the Iraqi society. H.E. called for collective responsibility in preserving national gains and maintaining stability.
