Sayyid Al-Hakeem: Students Build the Present and Future, Empowering Them is a National Responsibility

On Iraqi Student Day, Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers' Alliance, reiterated the importance of Students in building the present and the future, calling them a beacon of the homeland and its everlasting wealth.

His Eminence stated on social media: “Students are the architects of the present and future, the beacons of our homeland, and its everlasting wealth. We see in them the potential for goodness, generosity, the realization of ambitions, and a sense of responsibility towards nation.

On Iraqi Student Day, we call on the relevant authorities, including the Ministry, educational directorates, and both public and private schools, to cultivate students' diverse talents, provide the necessary support for their development, and achieve accomplishments that benefit society and the country. This is crucial for keeping up with the rapidly advancing global standards in education and upbringing.”
