Sayyid Al-Hakeem Meets Al-Abbasiyah Tribal Leaders, Stresses Services, Informed Electoral Participation

As part of his ongoing engagement with the Iraqi people, Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers Alliance, met with a group of tribal leaders and dignitaries from the Al-Abbasiyah area in Najaf Governorate.

During the meeting, H.E. emphasized the importance of delivering essential services to this vital region and called for continued oversight of service-related projects. H.E. urged relevant authorities—both at the local government level and within specialized ministries—to take necessary action to address community needs.

H.E. also underlined the significance of the upcoming elections, describing them as a key factor in reinforcing national stability and ensuring the delivery of services to underserved areas. H.E. stressed the need for all regions to receive fair and genuine representation through the election of candidates capable of voicing citizens' concerns and addressing their needs within both legislative and executive institutions.

Calling for a high sense of national responsibility, H.E. reiterated his call for broad, active, and informed electoral participation. He urged voters to follow the principle of “choosing the righteous from within the righteous list” as a foundation for building a strong state and a flourishing society.
