Sayyid Al-Hakeem: Coordination Framework Unity, Preserving Experience Necessary for Country’s Stability, Overcoming Crises

His Eminence Sayyid Al-Hakeem, Head of the National State Powers’ Alliance, received this evening representatives of the political offices of the Coordination Framework forces and discussed with them the latest political affairs in Iraq and the region. H.E. explained the challenges facing the country, particularly the economic challenge arising from regional events, hoping they end soon.

H.E. renewed emphasis on the unity of the Coordination Framework and preserving this experience, which contributed to the country’s stability, the formation of the government, and overcoming crises.

H.E. pointed to the importance of sustaining communication among the political offices of the Coordination Framework forces and discussing various issues and developments, contributing to unifying visions and bridging views.

H.E. explained that the security and societal responsibility has doubled after the end of the International Coalition’s missions to defeat ISIS, stressing the need to send reassuring messages among the various Iraqi components, particularly from the largest component toward the other components.

H.E. renewed support for the government in its steps toward addressing economic challenges and its efforts to fight corruption and provide services, stressing the need to complete the cabinet with competent candidates capable of managing their positions in light of the current challenges.

H.E. stressed the importance of addressing the problem of weapons outside the framework of the state through dialogue and understanding, and of covering all those to whom this description applies, with the need to value and preserve the standing of the factions that contributed to defeating terrorism and liberating the land, and to safeguard their roles.
