H.E. also called for dedicating oil revenues to strategic projects and a future generations fund.

H.E. affirmed that Diyala Governorate possesses large and diverse productive characteristics, agricultural, industrial, and oil-related, in addition to being an important tourist destination, explaining that Diyala is an important pillar of the Iraqi economy, stressing stability to revive tourism and investment, and calling for preparing scientific visions and plans to achieve the economic goals.

H.E. called for sending messages of reassurance among the Iraqi components and proving their ability to manage their own affairs, holding elites, professionals, and tribal sheikhs responsible for creating a fair equation for all, and making it a condition for a strong economy that the country enjoys calm and stability. H.E. warned against complacency toward terrorist cells and called for caution and vigilance, for eliminating internal problems, strengthening the state, and resolving the problem of weapons outside the framework of the state, regarding social awareness as a major gain that would turn challenges into promising opportunities to serve Iraq.
